Bring a favorite tool if you have one, your helping hands, and a little elbow grease — working together always feels good and makes such a difference for the children.

Our next Open House will be Tuesday, January 27. If you know a family who may be interested in joining our Mālamalama 'ohana, please feel free to invite them.

Aloha from the garden!

Our garden is looking especially nice lately. It is wonderful to see all the love and care each of the classes has put into their parts of the garden. We have been eating some very nice vegetables in our soups lately. If you have not been up to see our garden, please take some time and visit. Most classes work up there at least once a week - check with your child's teacher. I'm also happy to show you around after school.

I'm pleased to report that our shed has a roof and siding on it. It is still in need of a ramp, door, paint, gutters and vent screening before we can really use it. It is coming along very nicely. The pavilion is just about completed too. Aspen Douglas came and helped put the first of the rafters up. By the time we return to school it should be completed.

We are actively composting all of the food waste from the Kinderhale kitchen. This is a little bit larger of an activity than we expected. If you are interested in learning more about composting or just want to come help out, please let us know.

We are always looking for additional hands in the garden. If you are interested in getting your hands dirty or just love working with the earth and plants we'd love to have you share in our work in the garden.

Mahalo and Happy New Year

December Fun!

Class 8

Happy New Year 8th Grade Families!

December was such a memorable month! Of course, the class play is the dominating memory. Not only did it all culminate in a brilliant final performance, but all of the preparations leading up to the performance were memorable as well: running lines at school, getting props and costumes ready, commuting to the theater, and rehearsing in a real theater are now experiences indelibly part of us all. Bookending all of that was celebrating the Winter Spiral together for the last time and a beautiful Festival of Lights.

Mahalo again for all of your generous gifts and words during this holiday season. This community is truly a blessing.

Looking ahead, we begin the new year with a math block, focused on geometry and graphing. After spending weeks working on a play, which is a very exciting and sanguine activity, it will be nice to ground ourselves a bit more with mathematics. We'll accompany our math studies with daily Bothmer gymnastic exercises meant to help the students connect with the different planes of space around them.

Also, when Yuki Sensei returns in mid-January we will look at launching our bento lunch business. Mahalo to Mary Babcock for helping the students develop more kitchen skills. More details on this to come.

Finally, now that the class play is over, students should focus their attention on their 8th Grade Projects. Students will be expected to turn in their journals each week and give a presentation every other week as well.

Looking forward to a great second half of the year!

Mahalo,
Mr. Dewey

Class 6/7

Aloha and Happy New Year from the 6th and 7th grade class.

I hope that your holiday season has been a relaxing and joyous one.

We headed into winter with a wonderful Festival of Lights. It was wonderful to see so many people celebrating the winter season with us.

As a class, we finished up our short block on Sacred Geometry where we learned to draw the Platonic Solids from the Seed of Life and then we learned how to draw the individual Chakra Mandalas.

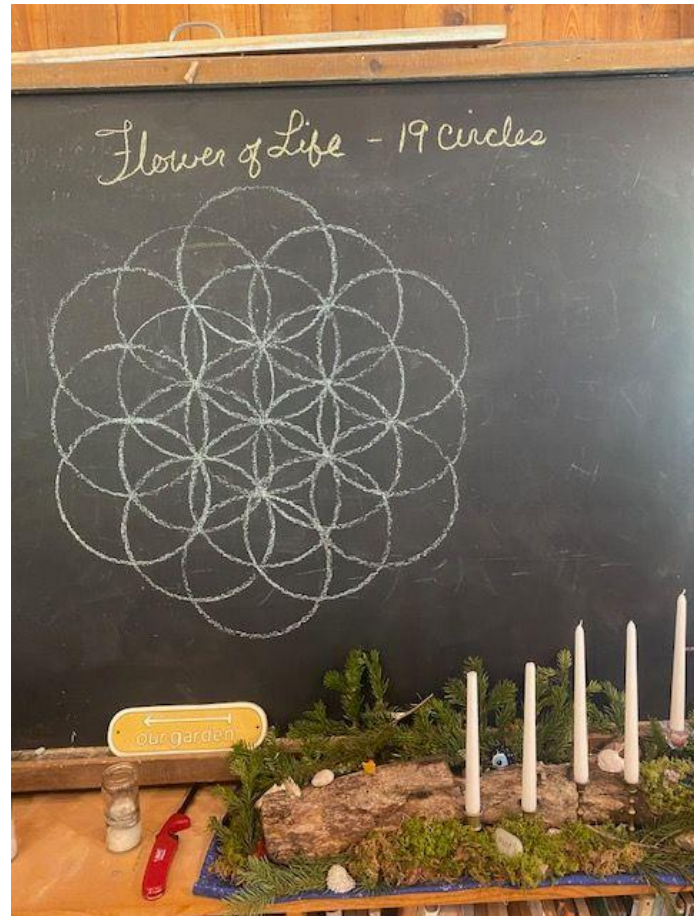

Upon returning we will begin our geography block on Africa. We actually began over break by reading a compelling story of a young Sudanese girl and her daily walk to retrieve water for her family. Our block will focus on certain geographical regions and the people that live there. We will tap into some of the history of these areas. I will also be able to share more personal experiences from my time as a Peace Corps volunteer in Senegal, West Africa.

We will also begin rehearsing for our play The Somewhat True Tale of Robin Hood. We will likely perform the play just before we head out for spring break.

I'm looking forward to having everyone back and excited for the rest of the school year.

Blessings to all of you for the New Year.

Mr. Cox

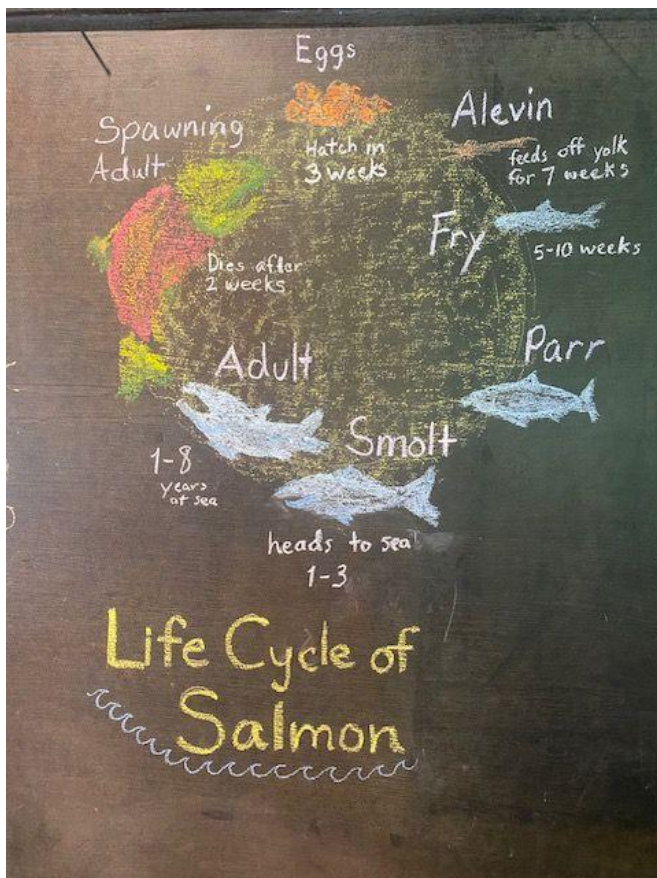

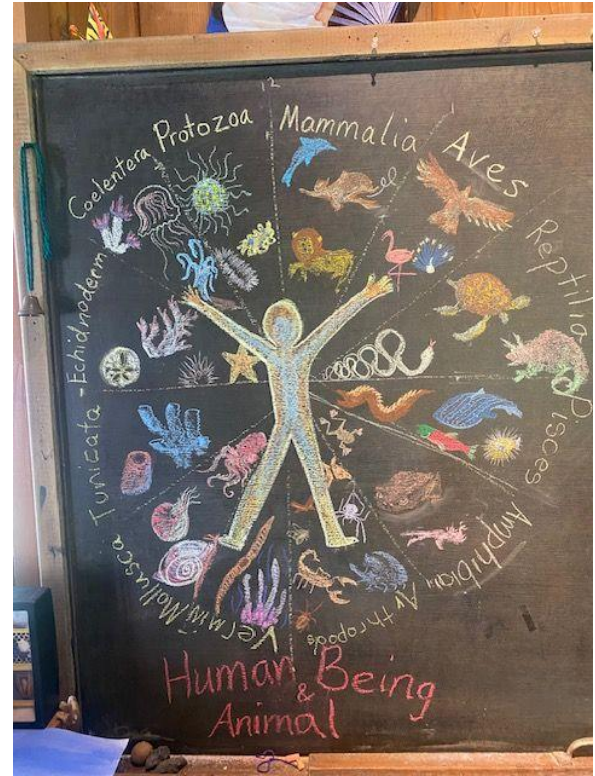

Class 4/5

Dear Class Four/Five,

We continue to hold Ms. Jenkins and her family in our hearts during this time. She will be returning to the Class 4/5 classroom on Tuesday, January 13. We are deeply grateful to Mr. Ragland and Ms. Richards for lovingly supporting the class and helping to hold the space while she has been away. The Class 4/5 students also offered such beautiful performances at the Festival of Lights – their singing was truly moving. In this week's News Notes, we're happy to share a glimpse of the stunning chalkboard art created for the class. 🌸

Dear Class Two/Three,

As we return from winter break, I am looking forward to beginning the new term together with stories of creation. We will be carrying gratitude from December, especially for the warmth, generosity, and strong sense of community that surrounded our classroom as we closed out the calendar year.

January will bring renewed rhythms and opportunities to be together outdoors. We are hoping to take a class hike to Volcano National Park later this month, grounding our learning in nature and shared experience. Looking ahead to the spring, we are also dreaming into several experiential field trips connected to practical arts, Hawaiian culture, and regenerative agriculture, continuing our commitment to learning through movement, place, and relationship.

December was a beautiful reminder of the children's growing independence, kindness, and care for one another, particularly during our winter celebrations and shared classroom moments. I'm deeply grateful for the families who helped support these experiences and for the spirit of collaboration that continues to nourish our class.

Warmly,
Cortney
